In some cases the fit was so perfect and the form so elegant they looked as if the dress had been made first and the wearer moulded into it. Another of the critical ones just remarked that the ladies were not so beautiful as their dresses.

PAITH IN THE WATER.

It would seem as if everybody who comes to Vichy comes to drink the waters and bathe in the Vichy water. In this respect it greatly differs from Saratoga, where more than half the visitors turn up their noses at the water, and go there because it is tashionable, to see and be seen and display their toilettes. It may, therefore, be inferred that all who are here have some allment, and expect health, youth, and beauty ment, and expect health, youth, and beauty to be restored to them. Every drinker at the Grand-Grille seems to look into the glass of water with faith depicted in his countenance. There is a strange solemnity in the draining of the glass by the thousands who surround the glass by the thousands who surround the spring during drinking hours. Everything else seems of little consequence in compar-ison with the attainment of health, which

He was told to stand aside, and Mr. Wililam Dillard, the bar-keeper, was called.
The witness said that Thursday night Morrison came into the bar and invited Messrs.
Kennedy and Swem, who were present, to take a drink with him. Morrison, who was drinky, called for the best wine in the house, and taking out of his pocket a big roll of bank-notes, which he said was $150,
laid it upon the bar-counter.

After taking the drinks Morrison, where
